CONTROL OF A THYRISTOR OF A RECTIFYING BRIDGE

ABSTRACT

5   A method and a circuit for controlling at least one thyristor constitutive of a rectifying bridge with a filtered output, consisting of closing the thyristor when the voltage thereacross becomes greater than zero, and making the gate current of the thyristor disappear when the current therein exceeds its latching current.